

MOVEMBER: Photo contest for Fourlis group male employees

MOVEMBER

As part of its initiatives to raise awareness about men's health, Fourlis group once again supported the global Movember movement by organizing an internal photo contest for male employees.

Movember is an international campaign that takes place every November, aiming to raise awareness about important men's health issues, including the prevention and early detection of prostate cancer. The name combines the words Moustache and November, encouraging men to grow a moustache as a symbol of support for the cause.

As part of the initiative, employees were invited to participate in a photo contest by posting pictures featuring natural or symbolic moustaches, either individually or with colleagues, on F2F, the group's internal communication platform. The most creative and fun entries were rewarded with men's grooming gifts from Holland & Barrett.

Through this initiative, Fourlis group contributed to raising awareness about men's health while promoting creativity, engagement, and team spirit among employees.
